

THE AI IPO WAVE

AI was supposed to disrupt finance.

Instead, it's about to be finance's biggest payday.

A quick story in 6 slides →

swipe →

"AI will disrupt and disintermediate the banks."

And there's real evidence: a $746M CVC deal was just run by an AI chatbot instead of sell-side bankers.

The biggest AI firms are racing to go public.

And to go public, they need exactly what they were supposed to replace: Wall Street.

The same two banks are fighting to lead all of them.

Anthropic

~$965B · Goldman, Morgan Stanley, JPMorgan

OpenAI

~$850B+ · reportedly in talks

SpaceX

~$1.75T+ · IPO in motion

Disruption and dependence, at the exact same time.

AI is running deals without bankers in one corner — and cannot cash out without bankers in the other.

When a near-trillion-dollar company needs Wall Street to get liquid —

who's really the disruptor, and who's the disrupted?

Your take? ↓ Drop it in the comments.

